An Exchange at the Altar

Two couples presented themselves at the mayoralty in a suburb of Paris to carry out the civil portion of their marriage contract. During the ceremony one of the bridegrooms saw, or fancied he saw he saw his partner making "sheep eyes" at the other bridegroom. He cried sharply,— "Mademoiselle, which of the two brides are you? You are mine, I believe; then confine your glances to me."

The bride was a young woman of spirit, and, resenting his tone, retorted,—

"Ah monsieur, if you are jealous of me already, I am likely to lead a pleasant life with you, now am I not?"

The jealous bridegroom made an angry reply, and then the other bridegroom must needs join in. This led to a general dispute, which the mayor endeavored in vain to quell. The bridegrooms stormed, and the brides, through their hysterical sobs, accused each other of perfidy. At length the mayor adjourned the ceremony for half an hour to admit of an amicable understanding, both brides having refused to proceed. When, at the expiration of the half hour the parties were summoned to reappear, the bridegrooms had literally effected an exchange of brides. Adhering to the arrangement, the mayor bound them husbands and wives.

Letters Delivered in an Odd Way.

Recently Captain Crawford towing out a vessel, picked up, some distance from land, a board about three inches wide by three feet long, upon one end of which was tied a bottle filled with wine, while upon the other end was fastened another bottle filled with letters. Upon one side of the board was written: "Please mail the letters and the wine. Officers United States steamer Tallapoosa, bound for Pensacola, Fla. Please break the bottle and mail inclosed letters." Upon the other side of the board was written:

"United States steamer Tallapoosa, at sea, June 29, 1882. Weather fine." The bottle containing the letters was broken. Captain Crawford sighted the Tallapoosa in the distance and everything seemed to be working smoothly. He returned to Mayport in time to hand the letters to George L. Fox, the mail agent, who delivered them to Colonel Jay upon arriving at the city, and they were immediately forwarded North.

The Duke of Westminster, next to Mackay the richest man in the world, was married in June last to Lady Catherine Cavendish. The bride's eldest brother, Captain Cavendish married the Duke's daughter, Lady Beatrice Grosvenor, upward of four years ago, and has a son, William Hugh, by her, now three years and a half old. Captain Cavendish will therefore become the brother-in-law of his father-in-law; his son Charles William Hugh, will become the nephew of his own grandfather, and any son born of the Duke's second marriage will be at once the brother and the nephew of Lady Beatrice Cavendish. The Duke will become the uncle of his grandson and the brother-in-law of his own daughter, and thus in a sense he will be his own son. Miss Cavendish is a very charming and pretty young lady, who is just over twenty-four years of age. The Duke, on the other hand, is thirty-two years and two months older than the bride.

When a burglar makes a raid on the dwelling of a Texas editor, the only thing the burglar takes, when he leaves, in his departure.
